About Croatia

The Republic of Croatia is an independent country in South Eastern Europe with its capital in Zagreb. Having a population of over 4 million, Croatia lies at the Eastern coast of the Adriatic Sea with its hinterland stretching to the slopes of the Alps and deep into the Pannonian lowlands, to the banks of the Danube and Drava Rivers. It consists of three geographic regions: the Mediterranean, the Mountainous and the Pannonian region. In the west of the country Croatia borders on the Italian Adriatic, in the northwest and north on Slovenia, in the north and northeast on Hungary. In the east it borders on the Province of Vojvodina (within Serbia), in the south on Bosnia and Herzegovina, and in the far south on Montenegro. Though a small country, Croatia is defined by diverse cultural influences that resulted in distinctive architecture and a rich stew of traditions. It is well known for its beautiful Adriatic coast, however, traditional atmosphere as well as the beauty of the landscape can be observed in the continental Eastern region of our country, named Slavonia and Baranja. Osijek is the capital of Slavonia and Baranja. A convenient geographical location on the rivers of Drava and Danube makes Osijek a political, cultural, educational and industrial centre.

Time zone

Croatia is one hour ahead of Greenwich Mean Time (GMT), 6 hours ahead of New York and Montreal, 9 hours ahead of Los Angeles, 4 hours ahead of Sao Paulo, 2 hours behind Moscow, and 8 hours behind Tokyo. Daylight saving time is observed from late March to late October, during which time the clocks are advanced one hour.

Climate

Continental Croatia has a continental climate, while the Adriatic coast has a Mediterranean climate. In the continental area, where Osijek is situated, spring and autumn are mild, summer is usually hot while winter can be cold and snowy.

Customs

Custom duties are not paid on personal objects. Radios, telephones, sporting and professional equipment may be brought into the country after having been registered at the border crossing.

Passports and licenses

Passports or other identification documents recognized by international agreement are required to enter the country. A driving license, traffic license and the relevant insurance documents (except for countries that have other regulations) are necessary to enter into Croatia with a vehicle.

Electricity

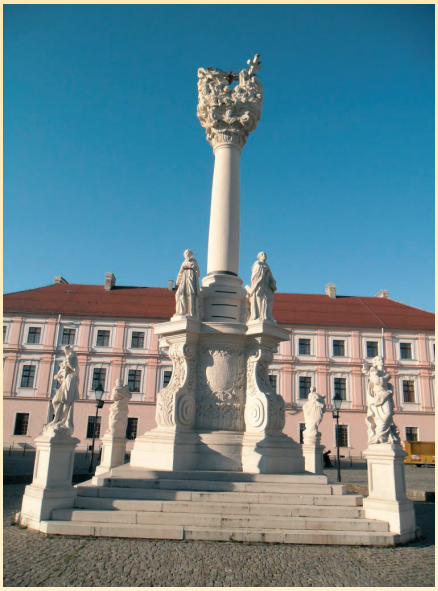

Electrical current is 220 volts AC, 50 Hz. Most plugs have two round pins. So, if you wish to operate personal electric or electronic items that are not compatible with our electrical system, you should bring a plug adapter and a transformer.

The City

Historical Overview

The history of Osijek goes back to the Neolithic times and begins with the first known inhabitants who belonged to the Illyrian tribes. Later on, in 133, the Roman emperor Hadrian raised the old settlement of Mursa to a colony with special privileges.

After that, Mursa had a turbulent history, with a lot of decisive battles that took place here, deciding the destiny of the whole region. After migrating, the Croats made a settlement near the ruins of Mursa, giving it its present name, Osijek. The first precise mention of this name can be found in the Papal list from 1332, with a precise mention of Osijek parish. Life was thriving here in the Middle Ages, but only traces of that life can be found today, because the Turks destroyed everything they found and built a town to suit their style. The Turks built several important buildings and mosques here, including Suleiman the Magnificent's famous 8 km long wooden bridge, considered to be one of the wonders of the world. After liberation from the Turks in 1687, Osijek was once again completely devastated. Between 1712 and 1721, the new Austrian authorities built a new fortress, today known as Tvrđa. It is a unique urban and military complex that lies in the heart of the town. Its central Holy Trinity Square is bound on the north by the Building of the Military Command, today the seat of the Rector. On the west there is the Main Guard Building, and on the east the Magistrate Building, presently the Museum of Slavonia. In the middle, there is the Plague Monument, erected in 1729.

The three parts of the town, the Lower Town, Tvrđa, and the Upper Town were united in 1786, and Osijek became the administrative centre of the Slavonia region. In 1779, a new wooden bridge was built across the Drava River, connecting Osijek with Hungary and the rest of Central Europe. Upper Town became the new business centre of the town.

Osijek was heavily damaged during the Homeland War, 1991-1995. The peaceful reintegration of Eastern Slavonia and Baranja was successfully completed, opening the way to the revival of our city and the whole region.

Osijek Today

Osijek is the administrative and economic centre of Eastern Croatia, situated on the right bank of the Drava River, 25 km upstream from its mouth into the Danube. Osijek has also convenient geographical location at the crossroads to Hungary, Serbia and Bosnia and Herzegovina, thus being a city of multicultural and multiethnic community.

We will take you for a little walk through the city streets, squares and parks...

Let's start from the center, Ante Starčević Square, located in the Upper Town, which is the administrative and business centre of Osijek. Most buildings date from the late 19th and early 20th century. The Concathedral consecrated to St. Peter and Paul is drawing your attention with its impressive size. It was built at the end of the 19th century in the Neo-Gothic style. Bishop Josip Juraj Strossmayer, after whom our University is named, supported its construction.

Other interesting sites are:

- Kapucinska and Županijska streets, as the busiest ones in Osijek, fully reveal the urban spirit of the city
- Several city parks, ensuring Osijek's reputation as "the green city"
- The Croatian National Theatre, founded in 1907
- The City and University Library building, built in 1905 and
- The Museum of Fine Arts, built in 1895, both located on the European Avenue
- The old part of Osijek, Tvrđa, a unique complex where the Rector's Office and some faculties are situated

Some dishes one needs to try while visiting Baranja are nettle sauce, clay pot stew, shepherds' stew or carp between forked branches.

Kopački Rit Nature Park

Kopački rit is a protected nature park, a swamp area that is home to different wild animals and very rare birds. That important geographical position significantly influences all the aspects of city development.

Some historical sites such as the Franciscan Monastery, the Brod Fortress, the House of Family Brlić, as well as beautiful nature landscapes attract many visitors and make living in the city quite cozy.

Požega

The town of Požega is located in a fertile valley, which is framed by the Slavonic mountain ring of Psunj, Papuk, Dilj and Požeška Gora. The Golden Valley, or Vallis Aurea, as the Romans called it, attracts visitors for centuries with its natural and historical sites, some of which worth mentioning are: City Museum and Librar, Baroque streets, churches and monuments, vineyards, bicycle paths and the Papuk Nature Park.

Thanks to the rich baroque architecture of its historic centre, Požega is also a place where hospitality comes first, accompanied by quality local wines, freshly tapped homemade beer, and specialties of the rich Slavonian culinary tradition.

Đakovo

Đakovo is a town of bishops, but it is also a town of traditional ethno festivals Đakovački vezovi and Đakovački bušari, both of which are worth seeing.

Besides its rich gastronomic offer and great Đakovo wines, in the town of Đakovo there are many cultural and monumental sights, the most important of which is the St. Peter's Cathedral. It is also known as the Strossmayer Cathedral, by the name of the Đakovo bishop and Croatian benefactor Josip Juraj Strossmayer, after whom the University of Osijek has also been named. Horse lovers will visit the State Lippizaner Horse Farm, established in 1506.

Vukovar

Vukovar is situated about 30 kilometers to the east of Osijek, where the Vuka river enters the Danube. The city is on the borders of Slavonia and Sirmium regions. Unfortunately, it is widely known by its war sufferings and destructions. Today, after years of war, Vukovar is revived and rebuilt, and it is offering to visitors a great blend of Danube scenery and historical sites. Worth mentioning is the archaeological site of Vučedol, located along the banks of the Danube, some 5 kilometres downstream from Vukovar. This is one of the most significant sites of the Eneolithic period. This Eneolithic culture was named after its place of origin – the Vučedol culture.

A Short History of Higher Education in Osijek

The history of higher education in this area began almost three centuries ago, i.e. in 1707, when the first institution of higher education was founded in Osijek. It was the Higher Theological School, which was opened in the academic year 1707/1708 as Studium Philosophicum Essekini, and included a three-year course of studies in philosophy.

The significance of the first colleges in Osijek lies in their huge contribution to Croatian language and literature, the spreading of liberal-arts education, and the study of languages and classical literature.

The recent history of higher education in the area began in 1959 when the Zagreb Faculty of Economics, in accordance with the University of Zagreb, founded the Centre for part-time studies in Osijek as a branch of the Zagreb Faculty of Economics.

The initiative for the founding of the University of Osijek dates back to 1975. On March 26 1975, the Croatian Parliament (Sabor) passed the Decision granting consent for the establishing of the University

Trg Sv. Trojstva 3, HR-31000 Osijek, www.unios.hr

University of Osijek

of Osijek. Two months later, on 31 May 1975, the Agreement concerning the founding of the University of Osijek was signed by the Faculty of Economics, the Faculty of Agriculture and Food Processing, the Institute of Agriculture, the Zagreb School of Engineering and Naval Architecture for Engineering Studies in Slavonski Brod, the Teacher Training College in Osijek, the Zagreb Music Academy for the Music Department in Osijek, the City Library and the Historical Archives in Osijek. Therefore, we celebrate May 31 as the day when the University of Osijek was founded.

In this brief outline we need to point out several important years in the history of the founding of the various faculties of the University of Osijek: in 1975 the Faculty of Law, in 1976 the Faculty of Food Technology, in 1977 the Faculty of Education, in 1979 the School of Engineering and Medical Studies in Osijek, which developed into the Faculty of Medicine in 1998, in 1982 the Faculty of Civil Engineering, in 1990 the Electrical Engineering Studies developed into the Faculty of Electrical Engineering, and that same year the University Senate passed the Decision to include the name of Josip Juraj Strossmayer in the name of the university.

Joseph George Strossmayer (Croatian: Josip Juraj) was a bishop and theologian, politician and statesman. He was one of the most famous Croats in the world, known as a promoter of Croatian culture and the people's tribune, whose entire life was devoted to advancing welfare and progress of the Croatian people. He was born on February 4, 1815 in Osijek, died on April 8, 1905 in Đakovo. Strossmayer was a true predecessor of modern ecumenical quests for unification and open dialogue, and he strove for unity and cooperation despite differences, casting away centuries of misunderstanding and conflict. His personality, ideas, broad viewpoints, global reasoning and his overall legacy have been recognized and followed even today in the mission of the University of Osijek.

We need to point out that the academic year 1991/1992 began in wartime Croatia. We must emphasize that the University of Osijek was the only university in Croatia that suffered severe damage in the war for independence.

The University of Osijek today

Today, the University of Osijek (official abbreviation: UNIOS) is developing into a modern European higher education institution. It acts as a regional center of knowledge, research and excellence.

The Faculty of Tourism and Rural Development in Požega was developed on the foundations of the Polytechnics of Požega in 1998. The establishment of the Polytechnics of Požega concluded the long journey from the idea to the opening of a higher education institution in Požega, as a historical debt to this region from the 18th century, based on the foundations of the Academia Possegana. In 1761, the Jesuits founded an academy for the study of philosophy and moral theology named Academia Possegana, which ranks Požega among university cities.

The Faculty of Tourism and Rural Development disposes of a fully equipped building for conducting classes, sports fields, and teaching bases. It also owns plantations of vineyards with a gross area of 8.5 hectares. There is a newly built dormitory for student accommodation with a capacity of 110 beds, which includes a sports hall, a media library, classrooms, a student cafeteria, and all other facilities necessary for high-standard student life.

Before Leaving Home

Visa requirements and residence permit

After processing your application, you will be issued an official Letter of Acceptance and a Confirmation of Accommodation. These documents will be needed for regulation of your visa or residence permit.

All exchange students who intend to stay in Croatia longer than 90 days, i.e. three months are obliged to obtain the Residence Permit upon arrival.

For the regulation of the permit you will need the following documents:

1. Official request form
2. Acceptance Letter issued by the University of Osijek
3. Biometrical photo
4. Copy of the passport – page with the photo
5. Proof of sufficient means of subsistence (scholarship confirmation issued by your home university)
6. Proof of secured accommodation – confirmation of accommodation issued by the University of Osijek if you will be staying in the dormitory. In case of private accommodation, you will need a contract of rent and a proof of landlord's ownership.
7. European Health Insurance Card (EHIC)
8. Personal Identification Number for Croatian citizens
9. Non-criminal record (optional)

Health insurance

All exchange students must have health insurance during their stay in Croatia.

There are several options for regulating your health insurance.

- Students may use the health care services upon presentation of the European Health Insurance Card (EHIC).
- If you are coming from a country that has closed an interantional agreement on health security with the Republic of Croatia, you are entitled to use the emergency health care services during your temporary stay in Croatia. Before coming to Croatia, you should check with your health insurance provider at home under which conditions you can use your home health insurance in Croatia. If possible, your health insurance provider will issue a relevant document, which you should bring with you to Osijek. Upon arrival you will be assisted in contacting the Croatian Institute for Health Insurance, in order to replace the certificate attesting your right to use the health care with a paper-based health insurance record card (Croatian: bolesnički list).
- You should possess international travel and health insurance issued by an insurance company in your home country that is valid in Croatia. Such insurance must include repatriation coverage (the cost of the healthcare service is covered by the student, who will later be refunded by the insurance company).
